

Reaping

The tiny system once housed in San Jacinto High School is broadening not only its physical boundaries, but also its scope of influence. With the increased recognition of its academic programs and the extensive research activities, UH is attracting scores of out-of-state and international students. Approximately 25 per cent of the UH student body is drawn from outside of Texas.

This university is making a place for itself amongst the highest institutions in the country.